MADISON – Today at the State Capitol, Representative Andy Jorgensen (D-Milton) was sworn in to a fifth term in the Assembly. Jorgensen represents the people of Wisconsin's 43rd Assembly District, including portions of Dane, Jefferson, Rock, and Walworth Counties.

"It's an honor to serve as a voice for my friends and neighbors, and to stand up for our shared values: a stronger economy, world-class public education, and a better future for us all," said Jorgensen. "There's so much work to be done, and I'm raring to go."

Jorgensen has been appointed to six legislative committees for the 2015-16 session, including ranking positions on the Committees on Small Business Development and Public Benefit Reform, as well as seats on the Committees on Agriculture, Colleges and Universities, Rules, and Assembly Organization. Jorgensen will also serve as Assembly Democratic Caucus Chair.

"The session ahead will be a busy one, and that's just the way I like it," said Jorgensen. "No matter what's happening in Madison, though, folks can count on me to be just a call or email away. Your concerns are my first concern."

In keeping with his district outreach efforts, Jorgensen is set to hold a swearing-in ceremony tomorrow for those unable to make the trip to the State Capitol today. The event will take place on Tuesday, January 6th at 5:30 p.m. in the Edgerton City Council Chambers. Wisconsin State Supreme Court Chief Justice Shirley Abrahamson is set to officiate, and all are welcome to attend.
